PEACHTREE CORNERS, GA, May 9, 2016 – Stradis Healthcare, a leader in custom surgical packs and medical kits, showed off its new 70,000 square-foot facility on Monday. The 16-year-old business is relocating from its Lawrenceville, Ga. facility in the next 30 days to its new office and warehouse space in the Northwoods Office Park.

“We’re pleased to welcome Stradis Healthcare to our city,” said Mayor Mike Mason. “The location they’ve selected for their new headquarters will serve them well. Peachtree Corners is strategically located to major highways and Atlanta’s airport and is a regional job hub for the metro area.”

Owners Jeff Jacobs, Adam Sokol, and Dave Landry, welcomed invited guests Monday morning that included employees, their families, business leaders and Peachtree Corners Mayor Mike Mason and Councilmember Lorri Christopher (Post 5) during a ribbon-cutting event and tour of the company’s new facilities.

“This is a proud moment for our company,” said Jeff Jacobs, the company’s CEO. “The opening of this new facility marks an important milestone in our continued expansion.”

During the presentation Sokol, the company’s president, recalled the company began with a single phone call. “Sixteen years ago I called Adam and said “want to go into business together,” he remembered. The company’s third owner and partner Dave Landry joined the company in 2005 as Chief Sales Officer.

Sokol’s phone call set the stage for the new business which today employees over 50 people. With the move from its current 21,000 square-foot facility to its larger quarters, the company expects to add to its employee base.
