FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

New 'Peachtree Corners' Magazine to Debut in 2019

PEACHTREE CORNERS, GA, Jan. 11, 2019 – Gwinnett County's newest city will soon have its own printed magazine that focuses exclusively on Peachtree Corners. The first issue of the new "Peachtree Corners' quarterly magazine is expected to be in everyone's mailboxes by early February.

Long-time resident Rico Figliolini, former publisher of Inside Gwinnett and other community-focused magazines, is launching the new magazine in January 2019. The new publication will be printed quarterly and mailed to every household in the city. It will also be distributed throughout the city at various locations including restaurants, hotels, grocery stores and other local outlets.

"The magazine will be centered completely on the city, covering education, food, entertainment and business," said Figliolini. "We will also be featuring compelling stories of our community."

Figliolini said he's planning a "great cover story for the first issue" but is saving the surprise until the new issue hits the streets. Readers can expect stories on retirement living, (ways to stay in the Peachtree Corners area), summer camps, food stories, education updates and a section on real estate and home.

The City's quarterly newsletter, "Inside Peachtree Corners," which provides updates and important information and announcements, will be included in a special section of the new magazine.

"This is a great opportunity to have a publication that focuses on our city," said Mayor Mike Mason. "The new publication will highlight the many advantages of living in Peachtree Corners. We know it will be well-read by everyone in the community."
